 "Masterfully packed with more societal and psychological issues than any other film showing at HotDocs this year. From the chilling opening to the incredibly bittersweet conclusion, Family Portrait in Black and White is a film that will likely and justly be studied for years to come and is easily one of the biggest standouts of this year's festival." – CritisizeThis

"Ivanova's lush cinematography and candid directing skills provide viewers with an honest, moving viewpoint of what it's like to live in rural Ukraine. Family Portrait in Black and White is a touching and compelling documentary that will make viewers question their parenting moral barometer." – Exclaim

Filmed over the course of three years, filmmaker Julia Ivanova deftly creates and subverts expectations for the viewer while drawing out complicated emotional processes from Olga's children as they sit at the crossroad between a (truncated) childhood and limited adulthood. – Steady Diet of Film

Julia Ivanova shows a masterful ability in examining psychological landscape in the magnificent 'Family Portrait in Black and White' on the life of black Ukrainian orphans living with a very special foster mother. – Elnorte de Castilla
